SUBJECT: Cancellation of Materials Release Nos.: 925m, 1214f, 1265c, 1274c, 1288b, 1131h,
1303c, and 1323a

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

The Technical Suitability of Products program provides for the acceptance of new materials and products to be used in buildings financed with HUD-insured mortgages. This includes new single-family homes, multi-family housing and health care type facilities. Materials Releases (MRs) are issued by HUD for specific materials, products, or systems.

CRITERIA FOR CANCELLATION

Materials Releases are subject to cancellation at any time. Causes for Cancellation include:

1. Failure to comply with post-acceptance responsibilities in paragraph 3-8 of the Technical Suitability of Products Processing Procedures Handbook;
2. Poor field performance of a material, product or system. When there is documented evidence of poor performance, HUD will investigate the extent of the poor performance and determine the need for cancellation;
3. Failure to renew an MR according to 1-4-C of the Technical Suitability of Products Processing Procedures Handbook;
4. Failure to cooperate in the evaluation of performance;
5. Termination of production; or
6. Development of a Use of Materials Bulletin, or adoption of a standard in the Minimum Property Standards that fully covers the material, product or system. Such action renders a Materials Release no longer necessary.
